Overall orientation

10.1 The main objective of the programme, implemented by the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) and the International Trade Centre UNCTAD/WTO (ITC), is to maximize the trade and development opportunities of developing countries and to assist them in their integration into the world economy in a manner that enhances the development opportunities offered by the globalization process, while helping to shape international economic relations in the twenty-first century.

10.2 In the four years since the tenth session of UNCTAD, the Bangkok Plan of Action has served as a comprehensive blueprint for the work of UNCTAD and will continue to guide its work in the years to come. The eleventh session of UNCTAD was an opportunity to identify new developments and issues in the area of trade and development that had arisen since the previous session and to generate greater understanding of the interface and coherence between international processes and negotiations on the one hand and the development strategies and policies that developing countries need to pursue on the other. UNCTAD can play an important role in helping to ensure such coherence.

10.3 Since its inception, UNCTAD has consistently offered a perspective that looks closely at the trade- and development-related challenges of developing countries, as well as countries with economies in transition. Through its three major pillars, namely, consensus-building, research and policy analysis, and technical assistance, it has fostered a better understanding of the development process and the factors contributing to uneven economic growth in developing countries. Coordination and synergies among these three areas of work will continue and be enhanced. The independent analytical capacity of UNCTAD will be enhanced to ensure the high quality of research and analysis necessary to address key issues of importance to developing countries. The results of such analysis will support and reinforce its activities in consensus-building and technical cooperation. In all these areas of work, particular consideration will be given to the needs of the least developed countries. UNCTAD technical cooperation activities should also be strengthened through the implementation and follow-up of the technical cooperation strategy approved by the Trade and Development Board at its fiftieth session.

10.4 As the focal point of the United Nations for the integrated treatment of trade and development and interrelated issues in the areas of finance, technology, investment and sustainable development, UNCTAD is expected to make substantial contributions with respect to the implementation of the outcomes of recent global conferences. It will also contribute to the implementation of international development goals, including those contained in the Millennium Declaration, and to the follow-up of the comprehensive review of the progress made in that regard, to be held in 2005. It will contribute to the implementation of and take specific actions requested in the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the Decade 2001-2010, the Monterrey Consensus of the International Conference on Financing for Development, the Johannesburg Declaration on Sustainable Development and the Plan of Implementation adopted at the World Summit on Sustainable Development, the Declaration of Principles and Plan of Action adopted at the first phase of the World Summit on the Information Society, the Almaty Programme of Action: Addressing the Special Needs of Landlocked Developing Countries within a New Global Framework for Transit Transport Cooperation for Landlocked and Transit Developing Countries and the Programme of Action for the Sustainable Development of Small Island Developing States, including the outcome of its review, to be held in Mauritius in 2005. It should also contribute to furthering the implementation of internationally agreed goals contained in the Doha Ministerial Declaration adopted at the Fourth Ministerial Conference of the World Trade Organization (WTO) and other relevant decisions.

10.5 ITC will complement the work of its parent bodies, UNCTAD and WTO, by focusing its technical cooperation activities on supporting the efforts of developing countries and countries with economies in transition, most particularly their business sectors, to build the capacities needed to realize their full potential for developing exports and improving import operations so that they can compete in the international marketplace. Capacity-building support is provided through information dissemination, training and advisory services. The principal clients of such technical assistance are public and private sector institutions and institutional networks that extend specialized trade support services to the export community in partner countries. Its principal technical cooperation partners are national networks of trade support institutions concerned with the international competitiveness of the small-scale enterprise sector. Priority is given to Africa and the least developed countries.

10.6 UNCTAD will be responsible for subprogrammes 1 to 5, while ITC will be responsible for subprogramme 6.
