Item 3. Using South–South linkages to build productive capacities in developing countries

3. The Trade and Development Board, at its fiftieth executive session, in July 2010, approved the Multi-year Expert Meeting on International Cooperation: South–South Cooperation and Regional Integration with the following topics:

(a) Promoting South–South cooperation to build productive capacities, including in the agricultural sector, in developing countries and transition economies; and

(b) Trade financing and the role of regional financial institutions in promoting.

4. There is a growing interest among policymakers in rethinking development strategy around the challenge of building productive capacities. In this context, the crucial challenge faced by developing countries is how to use trade, investment and technology flows to support strong productivity growth, increased productive employment and rising real wages, without generating external imbalances and distortions that could slow the catch-up process.

5. The expert meeting will explore these issues in the context of growing economic linkages among developing countries and consider how South–South cooperation can ensure these linkages complement efforts to build productive capabilities in countries with different initial endowments, institutional histories and policy capacities.

6. The meeting will provide a forum to:

(a) Examine the ongoing development of South–South cooperation and its implications for inclusive development and improvement of productive capabilities;

(b) Present good practice and compare notes on innovative approaches in critical policy areas;

(c) Review issues and challenges to policy design at the national and international levels; and

(d) Identify opportunities to further inter-agency collaboration, knowledge-sharing and policy debate in the areas of UNCTAD's expertise.

7. To facilitate the discussion, the UNCTAD secretariat has prepared a background note. Experts and panellists will share their national or regional experiences on the topic of the meeting. In addition, experts are encouraged to prepare brief papers on the subjects under discussion. The papers will be made available at the meeting, in the form and language in which they are received.
