OVERVIEW

1. The main objective of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) is to maximize the trade and development opportunities of developing countries and to assist them in their integration into the world economy in a manner that enhances the development opportunities offered by the globalization process while helping to shape international economic relations in the twenty-first century.

2. At the tenth session of the Conference, held in Bangkok in February 2000, Governments recognized that ensuring all countries enjoy the benefits of globalization requires meeting complex policy challenges that arise, particularly at the macroeconomic level, from the growing interdependence of the various spheres of economic activity, including particularly trade, finance and investment, and the downside risks which this interdependence sometimes carries. Governments reiterated that, as the focal point within the United Nations for the integrated treatment of trade and development and the interrelated issues in finance, technology, investment and sustainable development, UNCTAD is pre-eminently placed to examine these issues and to build consensus on policies in a globalizing world from a development perspective. In order to achieve these objectives, UNCTAD acts as a forum for intergovernmental discussions, supported by discussions with experts, aimed at consensus-building; undertakes research and analysis inter alia to provide substantive inputs for these discussions; and provides related technical assistance tailored to the needs of beneficiary countries, concentrating on capacity-building.

3. The member States of UNCTAD conducted a mid-term review in the first half of 2002 to assess the progress made since the tenth session towards these objectives. In this review, Governments reconfirmed the special expertise of UNCTAD was its focus on the integrated treatment of development and trade, finance, technology and investment, and urged UNCTAD to make further efforts to develop this focus. For the programme implementation, Governments emphasized the urgency of supporting developing countries in the multilateral trade negotiations, the importance of enhancing the productive capacity of developing countries so as to enable them to take advantage of the opportunities provided, the importance of following up the outcomes of the Third UN Conference on Least-Developed Countries, held in Brussels in May 2001 and the need of close cooperation amongst all agencies and donors. Governments also stressed that the outcome of the Financing for Development Conference, held in Monterrey in March 2002, underlined the centrality of the issues covered by UNCTAD to international efforts to promote development, reduce poverty and achieve internationally agreed development goals, including those of the Millennium Declaration.

4. An intense preparatory process for the Conference is envisaged for the first quarter of 2004, involving intergovernmental, expert and civil society-related activities at sectoral and regional levels. The goal is to advance understanding and consensus to allow for a briefer Conference which would concentrate on broad policy issues and choices.

5. The focus of UNCTAD's work will be on four areas of activity: globalization and development; investment, enterprise development and technology; trade in goods and services and commodity issues; and services infrastructure for development, trade efficiency and human resources development. In each of these areas, priority will be attached to providing assistance to least-developed countries. The special needs and interests of small island developing States, landlocked developing countries, structurally weak and vulnerable economies and economies in transition will also be taken into account. Also taken into account are such crosscutting issues as economic cooperation among developing countries, and a gender perspective aiming at achieving gender equality in all economic sectors. UNCTAD will continue its work with the private sector, non-governmental organizations, academia and parliamentarians to address the challenges and opportunities of globalization and to make progress towards a better and fairer integration of developing countries into the world economy.

6. The effective implementation of the work programme will contribute to attaining the objectives identified in the United Nations Millennium Declaration, in particular those expressed in the Millennium development goals 1, 7 and 8. The programme will also contribute to the implementation of actions identified by and the outcomes of the Third United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries, the International Conference on Financing for Development and the World Summit on Sustainable Development. The programme will further assist developing countries and countries in transition in and contribute to the implementation of the WTO Doha Work Programme.

7. In addition to the quadrennial conference, the intergovernmental machinery of UNCTAD consists of the Trade and Development Board, the Commission on Trade in Goods and Services, and Commodities; the Commission on Investment, Technology and Related Financial Issues; and the Commission on Enterprise, Business Facilitation and Development. In order to benefit from a higher level of technical expertise, each commission may convene expert meetings not exceeding three days duration. The total number of expert meetings cannot exceed 10 per annum. The relevant units of the secretariat provide substantive servicing of the Trade and Development Board, its subsidiary bodies and the Commission on Science and Technology for Development, which continues to be a subsidiary body of the Economic and Social Council.

8. On the management side, the secretariat conducts for each biennium an extensive self-assessment of its substantive programmes at the level of branches and section, concentrating on qualitative aspects of their achievements using the logical framework approach. Further, the review of the functioning and relevance of intergovernmental machinery takes place every two years, the readership survey among member States on UNCTAD's publications is conducted annually, and an in-depth evaluation of a technical cooperation programme is conducted annually. The outcomes of these assessments are subject to an in-depth review by the Trade and Development Board, which provides guidance to the secretariat's work to make necessary adjustments in line with the priorities of member States and to take corrective measures when necessary.

9. In the implementation of its work programme, UNCTAD will: cooperate and liaise with governmental and intergovernmental organizations, such as regional and sub-regional groupings of developing countries and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development; cooperate and collaborate with specialized agencies and other organisations of the United Nations system, in particular, the World Trade Organization, the World Bank, UNDP, ITC, UNIDO, IMF, ILO, FAO, WIPO, ITU and the World Customs Organization; coordinate with other departments and entities in the Secretariat, in particular DESA, the regional commissions and the Office of the High Representative for least developed countries, landlocked developing countries and small island developing States; and cooperate with non-governmental organizations and academic institutions, as well as the private sector. Such collaboration and cooperation includes joint activities, contribution to reports, participation in meetings, briefings, technical and substantive support, joint database and sharing of information.

10. The estimated resources for the biennium 2004-2005 under this section amount to US$87,065,500.

A. POLICY-MAKING ORGANS

Eleventh session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development

11. In accordance with paragraph 2 of General Assembly resolution 1995(XIX), the Conference shall normally be convened at intervals of not more than four years. The General Assembly shall determine the dates and location of the sessions of the Conference, taking into account the recommendations of the Conference or of the Trade and Development Board. The next session of the Conference is scheduled to take place in the year 2004.

Trade and Development Board

12. The Trade and Development Board was established as a permanent organ of the Conference to carry out the functions of the Conference when it is not in session. The Board reports to the Conference and also to the General Assembly through the Economic and Social Council. The Board meets annually in regular sessions, and could meet in executive sessions three times per annum.

Subsidiary bodies of the Trade and Development Board

13. Three intergovernmental Commissions were established at the ninth session of the Conference as subsidiary bodies to the Trade and Development Board (see A/51/308, paras. 107-111) to perform integrated policy work in their respective areas of competence, as explained below. The Commissions hold annual sessions. The Board is also assisted by the Working Party on the Medium-term Plan and the Programme Budget in its oversight of the programme of work, including technical cooperation.

14. The Commission on Trade in Goods and Services, and Commodities was established to, inter alia, to assist developing countries to integrate themselves more fully into, and derive benefits from, the international trading system, to maximize the opportunities arising from the Uruguay Round agreements on issues relating to international trade in goods and services, and commodities issues, including strengthening the capacity of developing countries in the services sector.

15. The Commission on Investment, Technology and Related Financial Issues was established to deal with issues relating to international investment and technology, and related financial issues including development challenges regarding effective participation in international trade and investment, and issues related to competition law of particular relevance to development. In accordance with General Assembly resolution 49/130, the Commission is assisted by 16 expert advisers, serving in their individual capacity and selected from both developed and developing countries. The Commission also has two standing subsidiary expert bodies, namely. The Intergovernmental Group of Experts on Competition Law and Policy, and the Intergovernmental Group of Experts on International Standards of Accounting and Reporting.

16. The Commission on Enterprise, Business Facilitation and Development was established as a subsidiary body of the Trade and Development Board to deal with issues relating to enterprise development, services infrastructure for development, trade efficiency, and globalization and development strategies, including successful experiences.

17. Expert meetings. In accordance with paragraph 114 of the final document of the ninth session of the Conference, "Midrand Declaration and A Partnership for Growth and Development" (TD/377), each Commission may convene expert meetings in order to benefit from a higher level of expertise. The total number of such expert meetings is not to exceed 10 per annum, including sessions of the two standing expert bodies of the Commission on Investment, Technology and Related Financial Issues. Technical matters discussed at expert meetings are reported to the parent Commission, which may transmit them to the Board as appropriate.

Commission on Science and Technology for Development

18. The United Nations Commission on Science and Technology for Development (CSTD) was established by the General Assembly in 1992 as a functional Commission of the Economic and Social Council to give high-quality advice on science and technology to the GA and to ECOSOC and to serve as a forum to discuss and advance understanding on emerging science and technology issues. When the Commission was evaluated by ECOSOC in 1998, it was encouraged to sharpen its focus and devote attention to the issues of transfer of technology and capacity-building. The Commission is composed of 33 members, and meets annually at a regular session from 2003. At each regular session, the Commission decides on a substantive theme for the next session, and undertakes preparatory work through an ad hoc panel, and makes recommendations for consideration by ECOSOC.

B. EXECUTIVE DIRECTION AND MANAGEMENT

19. The Secretary-General of UNCTAD provides overall direction on substantive and managerial matters and orientation to, and ensures the effective servicing of, the intergovernmental machinery of UNCTAD, in particular the quadrennial sessions of the Conference and sessions of the Trade and Development Board. The Deputy Secretary-General deputizes for the Secretary-General, provides policy coordination and clearance on substantive work and provides directions in line with the objectives and strategies of the organization in programmatic terms.

20. The Chief, Executive Direction and Management assists the Secretary-General and the Deputy Secretary-General in discharging their management responsibilities. Programme, Planning and Assessment ensures strategic planning, coordination and assessment of programmes, manages the interaction with and coordinates UNCTAD's contributions to other United Nations entities, organizations of the United Nations system and intergovernmental bodies and oversees the UNCTAD New York Office. SUBPROGRAMME 5

LEAST DEVELOPED COUNTRIES, LANDLOCKED DEVELOPING COUNTRIES AND SMALL ISLAND DEVELOPING STATES

The objective of this subprogramme is to contribute to the progressive and beneficial integration and participation in the global economy and international trading system of least developed countries, landlocked developing countries and small island developing States, including through the implementation of the outcomes of the Third United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries and contribution to the Integrated Framework for Trade-related Technical Assistance to Least Developed Countries, and to contribute to the graduation of the least developed countries by meeting objective criteria as agreed intergovernmentally.

36. The subprogramme is under the responsibility of the Special Programme for the least-developed, landlocked and island developing countries. The principle mandate of this subprogramme emanates from the Programme of Action for LDCs for the decade 2001-2010 adopted by the Third United Conference on Least Developed Countries, Section II. E. of the Plan of Action adopted at the tenth session of UNCTAD and relevant GA and ECOSOC resolutions, in particular 55/279, 56/180 and 56/227.

37. The work of the subprogramme will be organized around two pillars, namely: interdivisional coordination of UNCTAD's technical cooperation activities in favour of least-developed, landlocked and island developing countries; and research and policy analysis aiming to improve human and institutional capacities in these countries in areas within the competence of UNCTAD. The effective implementation of the work programme under this subprogramme will contribute to attaining the objectives identified in the United Nations Millennium Declaration, in particular those expressed in the Millennium development goals 1 and 8.

38. The Special Programme will coordinate its activities with relevant organs and organizations of the UN system, in particular the Office of the High Representative on Least Developed Countries, Landlocked Developing Countries and Small Island Developing States. It will also cooperate with the Bretton Woods Institutions, the World Trade Organisation and the International Trade Centre and is responsible, jointly with these organizations, for the implementation of the Integrated Framework for Trade-Related Technical Assistance, adopted by the High Level Meeting of the World Trade Organization in 1997.

* External factors: The subprogramme is expected to achieve its objectives and expected accomplishments on the assumption that: (a) up-to-date and accurate economic and financial information and data at the country and regional levels is available; (b) financial resources for technical cooperation programmes are sufficient.
