Item 4

Mobilizing investment for development: Contribution of UNCTAD in the context of financing for development

8. Attracting increased investment to sectors that are key for economic development (e.g. infrastructure, power), for social impact (e.g. water and sanitation, health, education, food security, social housing) and for environmental sustainability (e.g. climate change mitigation and renewable energy) is at the centre of the current debates on sustainable global development. The public sector has primary responsibility for investment in sustainable development goal (sustainable development goal) sectors, but in many developing and transition economies it cannot alone attain the level of investment required, and increased private investment is necessary to complement public investment.

9. As recently re-emphasized by the ministerial round table held during the 2014 World Investment Forum, an overall policy framework that is conducive to attracting investment is an essential prerequisite for investment-led inclusive and sustainable development. Building on previous and current research, in particular the UNCTAD Investment Policy Framework for Sustainable Development and the Action Plan for Investing in the Sustainable Development Goals, a high-level panel will be convened to discuss financing trends, options available to developing countries, partnerships and innovative financing mechanisms for mobilizing investment for development and maximizing its positive impact. The outcome of the discussion might feed into the Third

International Conference on Financing for Development to be held in Addis Ababa in July 2015.

10. To inform the discussions, the Director of the Division on Investment and Enterprise will present the most recent trends in international investment for development. The secretariat has also prepared an issues note to guide the deliberation. The 2014 World Investment Report and the Chair's summary of the ministerial round table on investing in sustainable development, held during the 2014 World Investment Forum, will serve as background documentation.¹

11. In line with the established practice of the Investment, Enterprise and Development Commission, its work will continue with the consideration of the reviews of investment policies of the Republic of Congo and the Sudan, which will provide further opportunities to gather experience and draw best practice policies on how to mobilize investment for development and maximize the positive impact of such investment.

(a) Entrepreneurship and sustainable development goals

12. The global and financial crisis and its aftermath continue to have serious implications for enterprise policies in developing countries and countries with economies in transition, leading policymakers to introduce new measures to achieve inclusive and sustainable development objectives. In particular, the promotion of entrepreneurship and small and medium-sized enterprises will be critical in achieving the sustainable development goals.

13. Under this agenda item, a panel will therefore be convened to examine specific issues related to the achievement of sustainable development objectives through enterprise development. In light of the resolution recently approved by the General Assembly on entrepreneurship for development (A/RES/69/210), the secretariat has prepared an issues note highlighting best practices and identifying possible measures in support of

(b) Policies to promote collaboration in science, technology and innovation for development

14. Under this agenda item, the Commission will discuss policies to strengthen networking activities and linkages among science, STI stakeholders in the public sector, the business community and academia. Many developing countries have insufficient scientific and technological experience and capabilities; therefore, policy support will be instrumental in initiating, growing and bringing to sustainability networking activities and interactions, such as innovation clusters and innovation hubs, STI parks or business incubators. Such instruments have been used to promote technological development in a wide variety of contexts, using various models and approaches. The session of the Commission should enable the sharing of experiences and in developing and implementing policies to foster collaboration among STI stakeholders in the context of developing countries. The focus of the discussion is expected to be on presenting various approaches with an emphasis on STI parks.
