Fifth Meeting of the UNCTAD Research Partnership Platform

Geneva, 11 July 2014

Background Document:
External vs Domestic: the evolution of China’s competition regime

by
Wang, Lei & Krizic, Ivo

University of Luzern
The views expressed are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of UNCTAD
External vs. domestic: the evolution of China’s competition regime

WANG, Lei¹ & KRIZIC, Ivo²

To be presented at the Fifth Meeting of the UNCTAD Research Partnership Platform on Competition and Consumer Protection

Geneva, 11th July 2014

Abstract

The aim of the paper is to analyze the internal and external drivers in the formation of new competition regimes. Drawing on the concepts of external governance and international policy diffusion, the paper takes the enactment of China’s Anti-Monopoly Law (AML) as a case study to scrutinize the various channels through which emerging competition policy regimes have been shaped. It first illustrates the limits of recent research suggesting that the AML is essentially the product of EU competition rule “export”. Recognizing the specific features of China’s competition regime, we then investigate the domestically driven process of inspiration from abroad and customization to domestic conditions. By highlighting the diversity of sources in domestically driven rule selection, the paper makes a first step towards capturing the complex diffusion process in international competition policy.

Key words

Competition, China, external governance, diffusion

---

¹ Lei.wang@unilu.ch, University of Lucerne, Switzerland
² ivo.krizic@unilu.ch, University of Lucerne, Switzerland