

Ad hoc Expert Group Meeting on
Domestic Requirements and Support Measures in Green Sectors:
Economic and Environmental Effectiveness and Implications for Trade

13-14 June 2013
Geneva, Switzerland

List of speakers

	Guillermo Valles Director, International Trade in Goods, Services and Commodities Division, UNCTAD Ambassador Guillermo Valles is a career diplomat with over 35 years of professional experience. He has served in several bilateral and multilateral diplomatic missions in Latin American, European, Asian and U.N. posts. He held several relevant political positions including that of Deputy Foreign Minister of Uruguay. He graduated from the School of Law of the Universidad de la República in Uruguay with the title of Doctor in Diplomacy and has received several decorations from governments and NGOs.
	H.E. Mr. Faizel Ismail Ambassador of South Africa to the WTO Ambassador Faizel Ismail is Head of the South African Delegation to the World Trade Organization. He joined the new democratic government of South Africa in 1994 as it began its transition to re-integrate with the world economy and led South Africa's trade negotiations with the European Union, the Southern African Development Community, the Southern African Customs Union, with a number of bilateral trading partners and the WTO. He joined South Africa's Mission to Geneva in May 2002. He has written numerous articles on trade and development, including An Assessment of the 6th WTO Ministerial Conference, 2005, and 'From The Hong Kong WTO Ministerial Conference to the Suspension of the Negotiations: Developing countries reclaim the development content of the WTO Doha Round' (World Economics, 7(3) 2006). He holds an M.Phil. in Development Studies from the University of Sussex, United Kingdom, and an LLB from the University of Natal.
	Bernard Hoekman Professor and Research Director, Global Economics European University Institute Bernard Hoekman is the Director of the research strand "Global Economics: Multilateral Cooperation and Policy Spillovers". He has held various senior positions at the World Bank, including Director of the International Trade Department and Research Manager in the Development Research Group. He has also worked as an economist in the GATT Secretariat and held visiting appointments at Sciences Po. He has published widely on trade policy and development, the global trading system, and trade in services. He is a graduate of the Erasmus University Rotterdam and holds a Ph.D. in economics from the University of Michigan. He is a Research Fellow of the Centre for Economic Policy Research (CEPR) and a Senior Associate of the Cairo-based Economic Research Forum for the Arab Countries, Turkey and Iran (Cairo). Other positions include Chairperson, Global Agenda Council on Logistics & Supply Chain Systems, World Economic Forum. His most recent book is The Political Economy of the World Trading System (Oxford University Press, 3rd edition, 2009, co-authored with M. Kostecki).

Doaa Abdel Motal
Deputy Chief of Staff
Office of the Director General, WTO

Doaa Abdel Motaal is Deputy Chief of Staff of the World Trade Organization, working in the Cabinet of the Director-General, Mr. Pascal Lamy. She advises the Director-General on environmental issues, climate change, and agriculture. She is also responsible for the administration and budget of the WTO. Ms. Abdel Motaal has a PhD in Development Studies from the University of Geneva, a master's degree in Environmental Studies from the University of Cambridge, and an undergraduate degree in Economics from Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania.

Brendan Vickers
Chief Director, International Trade and Economic Development Division
Department of Trade and Industry, South Africa

Dr. Brendan Vickers is a research associate on dynamics that underpin global economic multilateralism including trade and development, international finance and economic government. He is the Head of Research and Policy in the International Trade and Economic Development (ITED) division of the Department of Trade and Industry. Prior to joining the department, he was the Programme Director for Global Economy and Development at the Institute for Global Dialogue (IGD), one of South Africa's leading international relations think-tanks. He previously also served as the Deputy Director responsible for International Relations and Trade in the Office of the President in South Africa.

Alexandre Comin, Director, Industrial Competitiveness Department
Ministry of Development, Industry and Trade, Brazil

Alexandre Comin has a Ph.D. and M.Sc. in Economics from the Campinas University (Unicamp) and Université Paris XIII and B.A. at the Universidade de São Paulo (USP). He is currently the Director of the Department of Industrial Competitiveness in the Ministry of Development, Industry and Foreign Trade. He was the Senior Analyst at the National Confederation of Industry in Brazil for more than 3 years, researcher and consultant in some leading Brazilian public and private institutions (Cebap, Seade, Fipe/USP, IESP/Fundap, IPT) for more than 20 years, and a Professor in the Department of Economics at the Catholic University at São Paulo (FEA/PUC/SP) for more than 14 years. His main publications include De Volta para o Futuro (Política e reestruturação industrial do complexo automobilístico nos anos 90) and many articles in specialized economic reviews and collaborations in collective works, newspapers and magazines (Portuguese, English and Spanish).

Robert Howse
Lloyd C. Nelson Professor of International Law
New York University School of Law

Since 2000, Professor Howse has been a member of the faculty of the World Trade Institute, Berne, Master's in International Law and Economics Programme. He is a frequent consultant or adviser to government agencies and international organizations such as the OECD, the World Bank, UNCTAD, the Inter-American Development Bank, the Law Commission of Canada and the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights. He is a contributor to the American Law Institute project on WTO Law. He has acted as a consultant to the investor's counsel in several NAFTA investor-state arbitrations. He is a core team member of the Renewable Energy and International Law (REIL) project, a private/public partnership that includes, among others, Yale University, the law firm of Baker & McKenzie and the investment bank Climate Change Capital. Professor Howse serves on the editorial advisory boards of the European Journal of International Law and Legal Issues in Economic Integration. He is sub-series editor for the Oxford University Press Commentaries on the WTO treaties.

Reinhold Buttgerit
Secretary General
European Photovoltaic Industry Association (EPIA)

Prior to EPIA he was in charge of environmental planning at the Federal Environmental Agency in Berlin, Germany. He also worked as consultant with Prognos AG in Basle and Berlin and as director and later on as head of Vattenfall's representative office in Berlin and Brussels. Reinhold studied Landscape Planning and he achieved a doctorate in Environmental Economics, both from Technical University of Berlin, Germany.

Ronald Steenblik
Senior Trade Policy Analyst
Trade and Agriculture Directorate, OECD

Ronald Steenblik is a Senior Trade Policy Analyst in the Trade and Agriculture Directorate of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). In that capacity he has participated in policy dialogues in numerous international forums, including the G-20 and WTO. Among the projects he is currently directing are the OECD's inventory of support to fossil-fuel production and consumption in OECD countries, and several studies on issues at the nexus of trade and the environment. While on sabbatical from the OECD, in 2006 and 2007, Steenblik served as the first Director of Research for the IISD's Global Subsidies Initiative (GSI), a programme developed by the International Institute for Sustainable Development aimed at improving information on the extent and effects of subsidies, especially those that are harming developing countries or the environment. Over the last 25 years he has made important contributions to the policy debate on subsidies to agriculture, biofuels, fishing, and energy production. He is also a regular peer reviewer for several academic journals, including Energy Policy. Steenblik earned degrees from Cornell University's School of Natural Resources and from the University of Pennsylvania.

Tom Moerenhout
Project Researcher
IISD

Tom Moerenhout is a junior project researcher for IISD's Geneva-based Global Subsidies Initiative. His research experience in academia and as a consultant reflects a wide range of interests: the role of trade, investment and subsidy policies in sustainable development; the interaction between trade/economic globalization and foreign policy/regime formation; and the political economy of EU external policies. On a topical basis, Tom has a keen interest in energy subsidy reform, the social impacts of biofuels and nuclear economics. At K.U.Leuven Tom's first Master Degree focused on EU external policies. During his second Master Degree at the Graduate Institute, he received in-depth education in trade and investment law, as well as economics of sustainable development.

Before joining the Global Subsidies Initiative, Tom served as a trade, energy and climate change consultant for projects commissioned by, among others, the OECD, IRENA, UNEP, OPEC, Nestle and Greenpeace. He remains active as an advisor on the role of trade and third party obligations in occupation-related conflicts to several EU governments as well as non-governmental organizations in the EU, Latin America, Israel and the Palestinian Territory.

Joachim Monkelbaan
Global Platform Programme Officer
International Centre for Trade and Sustainable Development (ICTSD)

Joachim Monkelbaan is Global Platform Programme Officer at ICTSD. He earned a Master of International Law and Economics at the World Trade Institute (WTI) in Bern, and a Master of European Law and Languages from Maastricht University. In the past, Mr. Monkelbaan worked as Programme Officer for multilateral cooperation on renewable energy for the International Center for Small Hydro Power (IC-SHP) based in Hangzhou, China, as Policy Officer, International Union for the Conservation of Nature (IUCN), Global Policy Unit in Switzerland, as Legal and Economic Officer for the Dutch Ministry of Economic Affairs, and

	as Associate Lawyer for Nauta Dutilh and Greenberg Traurig LLP in Amsterdam. Also, he interned at the Directorate-General for Multilateral Economic Affairs of the Secretariat of the Council of the European Union in Brussels, Belgium and at the International Trade Centre (WTO/UNCTAD) in Geneva. He currently also serves as academic advisor of the International Institute for Water Security at Zhejiang University in Hangzhou, China, is lead author of the Global Energy Assessment and member of the European Baha'i Business Forum, the Open World Initiative and the Evian Group. Mr. Monkelbaan is a citizen of the Netherlands.
	Patrick M. Maingi Chief Economist National Environment Management Authority, Kenya Patrick Maingi is a seasoned Resource Economist and an Environmentalist. Born in Kenya, he did his Master's degree in Development Economics at the Wageningen University (Netherlands) and a Bachelor's degree Agricultural Economics at Egerton University (Kenya). Currently he is the Chief Natural Resource Economist at the the National Environment Management Authority (NEMA), the principal agency of the Government of Kenya in implementing environmental management policies. He is also the WTO Desk Officer at NEMA and Chairman of the country's Technical Committee on Trade and Environment. Before joining the public service, Mr. Maingi was the National Economic Development Coordinator of the World Vision International (Kenya).
	Janet Chakarian-Renouf, Secretary of the Committee on TRIMS, WTO
	Mao Xianqiang Director of Center for Global Environmental Policy School of Environment, Beijing Dr. Mao Xianqiang is Professor at the School of Environment, Beijing Normal University. He has been a member of the Technical Supporting and Consultancy Expert Group for WTO Trade-Environment of the Ministry of Environmental Protection for 10 years. His research areas include environmental impact assessment of trade policy, co-control of local pollutants and GHGs, etc. He is the Vice Chair of the Chinese Society of Environmental Economics (CSEE) and director of the Center for Global Environmental Policy (CGEP) of Beijing Normal University.
	Christoph Kost Renewable Energy Innovation Policy Fraunhofer-Institut für Solare Energiesysteme, Germany Christoph Kost is a scientist in the group "Renewable Energy Innovation Policy" at the Fraunhofer Institute for Solar Energy Systems (ISE), Freiburg, Germany. He studied "Business Engineering" (Diplom-Wirtschaftsingenieurwesen) at the University of Karlsruhe (Germany) and Groningen (Netherlands) between 2003 and 2009. His current scientific work includes the topics of policy analysis and financing in the field of renewable energy sources, the derivation of technology costs and market introduction strategies for renewable energy technologies. He has worked in several international energy projects related to the MENA region for the World Bank, GIZ, AFD, kfw and Masen in the last years. In 2010 and 2012 he published the Fraunhofer study "Levelized costs of renewable energy technologies".
	Oliver Johnson, Researcher, German Development Institute Dr. Oliver Johnson is a researcher at the German Development Institute in the Department for Competitiveness and Social Development. He has a PhD in Science and Technology Policy Studies from SPRU (Science and Technology Policy Research) at the University of Sussex and specializes in low-carbon innovation, energy policy reform and energy access.

Sacha Silva

Associate
World Trade Institute Advisors, Geneva

Sacha Silva holds joint US and Canadian citizenship. He studied at the University of California at Berkely (BA, Hons) and at the London School of Economics (MSc), with a semester study at the Delhi School of Economics. Before joining WTI Advisors, he was a consultant to both the United Nations and several regional organizations in the African, Caribbean and Pacific regions.

Sacha is a trade economist with ten years' experience advising clients on the development implications of trade policy, both in terms of theory/analysis and practical implementation. His skills-set include formulating negotiation positions, mobilizing stakeholders, and consensus-building, and his areas of expertise include trade in agricultural and non-agricultural goods, regional trade agreements (particularly the EPAs) and the policy issues surrounding small states in the global trading system.

Dereje Agonafir Habtewold

Director
Environmental Units Program Directorate
Ethiopian Environmental Authority, Ethiopia

Dereje Agonafir Habtewold holds a B.Sc. in Biology from Addis Ababa University (Ethiopia) and an M.Sc. in Fisheries Science from the University of Hull (UK). He is currently the Director of the Environmental Units Programme Directorate at the Ethiopian Environmental Protection Authority. He issues environmental licenses and represents the Authority at various forums as well. He has written and co-authored many publications in the realm of fisheries management and the conservation of wetlands, including conserving wetland ecosystems for poverty eradication in line with the MDGs and sustainable development and measures on adaptation to climate change and variability from rural environment perspectives. He is also actively engaged in the preparation and implementation of Ethiopia's Climate Resilient Green Economy strategy.

Robert Teh

Counsellor
Economic Research and Statistics Division
World Trade Organization

Robert Teh is Counsellor in the Economic Research and Statistics Division of the World Trade Organization. His research interests include preferential trade agreements, WTO dispute settlement, trade remedies, and trade policy modelling. Since 2003 he has been one of the contributing authors to the WTO's World Trade Report. Prior to that, he worked as a lecturer in San Francisco State University and the University of the Philippines. He has been involved in the negotiation and implementation of free trade agreements in the Asia-Pacific region. He obtained his PhD in economics from Stanford University.

Cathleen Cimino

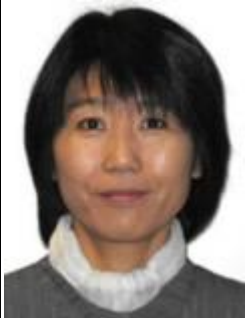

Research Analyst
Peterson Institute for International Economics, Washington

Cathleen Cimino has been a research analyst at the Peterson Institute since August 2012. She works with Senior Fellows Gary Clyde Hufbauer and Jeffrey J. Schott on economic issues relating to international trade policy, free trade agreement negotiations, and the future of the World Trade Organization. She obtained her master's degree in international affairs with a focus on international economics from the School of International Relations and Pacific Studies (IR/PS) at the University of California, San Diego. She earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in East Asian studies and political science from Columbia University. Her research background is on the East Asian region. Cathleen previously worked on international development and economic security issues at The Hunger Project and Asia Society, with internship experience at the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS).

Thomas Cottier
Managing Director
World Trade Institute

Thomas Cottier is Managing Director of the World Trade Institute and Professor of European and International Economics Law at the University of Bern and Dean of the Faculty of Law. He directs the national research programme on trade law and policy (NCCR International Trade Regulation: From Fragmentation to Coherence) located at the WTI. He is an associate editor of several journals. He was a visiting professor at the Graduate Institute, Geneva, and currently teaches also at the Europa Institut Saarbrücken, Germany, and at Wuhan University, China. He was a member of the Swiss National Research Council from 1997-2004 and served on the board of the International Plant Genetic Resources Institute (IPGRI) Rome during the same period. He served the Baker & McKenzie law firm as Of Counsel from 1998 to 2005. He has a long-standing involvement in GATT / WTO activities. He served on the Swiss negotiating team of the Uruguay Round from 1986 to 1993, first as Chief negotiator on dispute settlement and subsidies for Switzerland, conceptual work in the fields of services and intellectual property and legal counseling, and subsequently as Chief negotiator on TRIPs. Professor Cottier held several positions in the Swiss External Economic Affairs Department and was the Deputy-Director General of the Swiss Intellectual Property Office. He also served as a member or chair of several GATT and WTO panels.

Tomoko Miyamoto
Head
Patent Law Section
Patents and Innovation Division
World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO)

Tomoko Miyamoto is a Head of the Patent Law Section, Patents and Innovation Division, in the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO). Tomoko's current activities involve various issues with respect to patent policy, law and practices, including the development of international patent system and promotion of patent-related treaties. She also belongs to a team of Secretariat serving for the WIPO Standing Committee on the Law of Patents (SCP), within which issues relating to patents and technical standards has been discussed. Tomoko started her career as a patent examiner at the Japan Patent Office, and later worked in the International Affairs Division. She has a M. Eng in Electronics Engineering and an LL.M on IP law and management.

Sherry Stephenson
Senior Fellow at the ICTSD

Sherry M. Stephenson is an expert in the area of international trade policy, particularly services trade, and has worked more than 30 years in this area. She is a Senior Fellow with the International Centre for Trade and Sustainable Development (ICTSD) in Geneva. Most recently she was Senior Advisor for Services Trade at the Organization of American States (OAS) in Washington D.C. where she previously served as Director of the Department of Trade and Deputy Director of the Trade Unit during the ten years of the Free Trade Area of the Americas (FTAA) negotiations. She received a Ph.D. in International Economics from the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies / University of Geneva and an M.A. in Economics from New York University. She has served as an Advisor to the Minister of Trade in Indonesia and held positions with the OECD as well as with the GATT and UNCTAD Secretariats. She is a member of the Global Trade Agenda Council of the World Economic Forum and actively involved in the international trade policy work of the Pacific Economic Cooperation Council (PECC), including providing support to the APEC process. She has advised governments on trade policy issues and taught courses in universities in the United States, Switzerland, France, India and Indonesia, and lectured in several countries. For three years she was an Adjunct Professor at the School of Public Policy at George Mason University, Virginia. Her publications address in particular services trade, global value chains, regional economic integration, labor mobility and non-tariff barriers. She has edited two volumes on services trade and reform and published more than sixty articles in journals and books.

Luca Rubini
Deputy-Director
Institute of European Law
Birmingham Law School

Luca Rubini's main expertise lies in the regulation of the State intervention in the economy, particularly public subsidies. He is the author of the first theoretical analysis of the definition of subsidy in the WTO and EU and is presently extending his focus from subsidy law and policy to the analysis of the various linkages between energy, trade and climate change. In this respect Luca has been invited to present in institutional, academic and policy venues, in the UK and abroad, and is cooperating with various academic institutions, NGOs and policy actors.

Raymond Saner
Co-founder of CSEND
Director, Diplomacy Dialogue Branch

Titular Professor in Organisation and International Management (University of Basle) and Visiting Professor at Sciences Po, Paris (Master in Public Affairs), Raymond Saner is co-founder of CSEND, a Geneva based NGRDO (non-governmental research and development organisation, and the director of CSEND's Diplomacy Dialogue branch. His research and consulting focuses on conflict studies and international negotiations at bilateral, plurilateral and multilateral levels in the field of trade (WTO), employment and poverty reduction (ILO, PRSP), and Human and Social Capital development in the educational sector (GATS/ES/WTO and OECD). His recent research focused on mediation as a means to solve environmental conflicts in the alpine region and on inter-ministerial trade policy coordination. He has pioneered the field of business diplomacy and contributes to the study of multi-stakeholder diplomacy within the field of diplomacy. He is a reviewer of the Journal of Applied Behaviour (JABS) and the Journal of Managerial Psychology.

Daniel Peat
University of Cambridge

Daniel Peat is currently a PhD candidate in International Law at the University of Cambridge, having previously completed degrees at the Graduate Institute, Geneva, and the London School of Economics. He has taught on the Law of the World Trade Organization LLM course at Cambridge. His research interests include renewable energy issues in the WTO, and he has previously examined potential third-party institutional arrangements and local content requirements in the WTO, in conjunction with the International Institute for Sustainable Development. His current research focuses upon liability for hazardous activities in international law.

Anja von der Ropp
Legal Officer
Global Challenges Division, WIPO

Anja von der Ropp is a Legal Officer working in the Global Challenges Division of the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO). The Division was established to ensure that WIPO contributes its specific expertise to the global debates about major public policy issues, including, in particular, climate change, food security and public health. Her activities at WIPO currently focus on climate change, primarily an initiative through which WIPO further promotes innovation and enhances technology transfer mechanisms. Ms von der Ropp studied law at the University of Konstanz, Germany, where she graduated in 1999. She passed her German bar exam in 2001, after which she worked as a journalist, responsible for a newsletter on European health law and policy. She completed a Master's Degree (LL.M.) at the College of Europe specializing in intellectual property law. Before joining WIPO in 2005, she worked as a researcher and lecturer at the University of Bremen.