

DEBT WORKOUT MECHANISM: WORKING GROUP no.2

Date: 12 December 2013 Time: 9:30 – 17:00 Location: Geneva

Venue: Palais des Nations, Villa Bocage

Objectives of the meeting: discuss the second element of the DWM: The Principles of Good Faith and Transparency

Coffee and croissants available from 9:30 Introductory remarks: The status quo and the challenges Yuefen Li, UNCTAD Yilmaz Akyūz, South Center Debt Workout Mechanism: Good Faith and Transparency: rationale and theoretical framework Moderator: Matthias Goldmann, Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law Roundtable discussion - This roundtable purports to give some background as to the choice of such principles and their sources of law. During this session, the moderator will introduce the origins of the principles in both public and private laws and explain the main implication of designing it under Public International Law Lunch Good Faith and Transparency in Motion Moderator: Robert Howse, New York University School of Law Roundtable discussion - This roundtable is to discuss the principles of good faith and transparency in the context of sovereign debt restructuring. Participants will discuss the various aspects of these concepts and their meaning. This session will present an opportunity to examine the legal and procedural boundaries within which these concepts may be used, especially considering the multiplicity of authorities that currently take decisions on debt restructurings. Questions such as the timing and amount of information to be disclosed should be analyzed in depth. Coffee break Implications of a proposal on a rule of good faith and transparency in the DWM Facilitator: Anna Gelpern, Georgetown University Workshop - This session is meant to narrow down the set of ideas that should be taken into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.
Yuefen Li, UNCTAD Yilmaz Akyüz, South Center Debt Workout Mechanism: Good Faith and Transparency: rationale and theoretical framework Moderator: Matthias Goldmann, Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law Roundtable discussion - This roundtable purports to give some background as to the choice of such principles and their sources of law. During this session, the moderator will introduce the origins of the principles in both public and private laws and explain the main implication of designing it under Public International Law Lunch Good Faith and Transparency in Motion Moderator: Robert Howse, New York University School of Law Roundtable discussion - This roundtable is to discuss the principles of good faith and transparency in the context of sovereign debt restructuring. Participants will discuss the various aspects of these concepts and their meaning. This session will present an opportunity to examine the legal and procedural boundaries within which these concepts may be used, especially considering the multiplicity of authorities that currently take decisions on debt restructurings. Questions such as the timing and amount of information to be disclosed should be analyzed in depth. Coffee break Implications of a proposal on a rule of good faith and transparency in the DWM Facilitator: Anna Gelpern, Georgetown University Workshop - This session is meant to narrow down the set of ideas that should be taken into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.	9:30
theoretical framework Moderator: Matthias Goldmann, Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law Roundtable discussion - This roundtable purports to give some background as to the choice of such principles and their sources of law. During this session, the moderator will introduce the origins of the principles in both public and private laws and explain the main implication of designing it under Public International Law Lunch Good Faith and Transparency in Motion Moderator: Robert Howse, New York University School of Law Roundtable discussion - This roundtable is to discuss the principles of good faith and transparency in the context of sovereign debt restructuring. Participants will discuss the various aspects of these concepts and their meaning. This session will present an opportunity to examine the legal and procedural boundaries within which these concepts may be used, especially considering the multiplicity of authorities that currently take decisions on debt restructurings. Questions such as the timing and amount of information to be disclosed should be analyzed in depth. Coffee break Implications of a proposal on a rule of good faith and transparency in the DWM Facilitator: Anna Gelpern, Georgetown University Workshop - This session is meant to narrow down the set of ideas that should be taken into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.	10:00	Yuefen Li, UNCTAD
Roundtable discussion - This roundtable purports to give some background as to the choice of such principles and their sources of law. During this session, the moderator will introduce the origins of the principles in both public and private laws and explain the main implication of designing it under Public International Law 12:10 Lunch 13:30 Good Faith and Transparency in Motion Moderator: Robert Howse, New York University School of Law Roundtable discussion - This roundtable is to discuss the principles of good faith and transparency in the context of sovereign debt restructuring. Participants will discuss the various aspects of these concepts and their meaning. This session will present an opportunity to examine the legal and procedural boundaries within which these concepts may be used, especially considering the multiplicity of authorities that currently take decisions on debt restructurings. Questions such as the timing and amount of information to be disclosed should be analyzed in depth. 15:30 Coffee break 15:45 Implications of a proposal on a rule of good faith and transparency in the DWM Facilitator: Anna Gelpern, Georgetown University Workshop - This session is meant to narrow down the set of ideas that should be taken into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.	10:40	theoretical framework Moderator: Matthias Goldmann, Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and
Good Faith and Transparency in Motion Moderator: Robert Howse, New York University School of Law Roundtable discussion - This roundtable is to discuss the principles of good faith and transparency in the context of sovereign debt restructuring. Participants will discuss the various aspects of these concepts and their meaning. This session will present an opportunity to examine the legal and procedural boundaries within which these concepts may be used, especially considering the multiplicity of authorities that currently take decisions on debt restructurings. Questions such as the timing and amount of information to be disclosed should be analyzed in depth. Coffee break Implications of a proposal on a rule of good faith and transparency in the DWM Facilitator: Anna Gelpern, Georgetown University Workshop - This session is meant to narrow down the set of ideas that should be taken into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.		Roundtable discussion - This roundtable purports to give some background as to the choice of such principles and their sources of law. During this session, the moderator will introduce the origins of the principles in both public and private laws and explain the main
Good Faith and Transparency in Motion Moderator: Robert Howse, New York University School of Law Roundtable discussion - This roundtable is to discuss the principles of good faith and transparency in the context of sovereign debt restructuring. Participants will discuss the various aspects of these concepts and their meaning. This session will present an opportunity to examine the legal and procedural boundaries within which these concepts may be used, especially considering the multiplicity of authorities that currently take decisions on debt restructurings. Questions such as the timing and amount of information to be disclosed should be analyzed in depth. Coffee break Implications of a proposal on a rule of good faith and transparency in the DWM Facilitator: Anna Gelpern, Georgetown University Workshop - This session is meant to narrow down the set of ideas that should be taken into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.	12:10	Lunch transparency in the context of sovereign debt restructuring. Participants will discuss the various aspects of these concepts and their meaning. This session will present an opportunity to examine the legal and procedural boundaries within which these concepts may be used, especially considering the multiplicity of authorities that currently take decisions on debt restructurings. Questions such as the timing and amount of information to be disclosed should be analyzed in depth. 15:30 Coffee break 15:45 Implications of a proposal on a rule of good faith and transparency in the DWM Facilitator: Anna Gelpern, Georgetown University Workshop - This session is meant to narrow down the set of ideas that should be taken into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.	13:30	Good Faith and Transparency in Motion Implications of a proposal on a rule of good faith and transparency in the DWM Facilitator: Anna Gelpern, Georgetown University Workshop - This session is meant to narrow down the set of ideas that should be taken into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.		transparency in the context of sovereign debt restructuring. Participants will discuss the various aspects of these concepts and their meaning. This session will present an opportunity to examine the legal and procedural boundaries within which these concepts may be used, especially considering the multiplicity of authorities that currently take decisions on debt restructurings. Questions such as the timing and amount of information
Facilitator: Anna Gelpern, Georgetown University Workshop - This session is meant to narrow down the set of ideas that should be taken into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.	15:30	Coffee break into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future activities.	15:45	Implications of a proposal on a rule of good faith and transparency in the DWM
7:00 Conclusions		into consideration for the formulation of the rules of the DWM on good faith and transparency. This session should focus on the legal and political implications of the ideas to be retained, articulating these developments with ideas previously discussed and future
	17:00	Conclusions