INTRODUCTION

1. The Set of Multilaterally Agreed Equitable Principles and Rules for the Control of Restrictive Business Practices provides in section F.6 (c) for the compilation of a Handbook on Restrictive Business Practices Legislation.
2. Furthermore, the Fourth Conference to Review All Aspects of the Set, held in Geneva from 25 to 29 September 2000, as well as the Intergovernmental Group of Experts on Competition Law and Policy at its third session, held in Geneva from 2 to 4 July 2001, requested the UNCTAD secretariat to continue to publish further issues of the Handbook on Competition Legislation, including regional and international instruments, which should be complemented by a summary of the main provisions of competition laws on the basis of inputs to be submitted by member States (see the resolution adopted by the Review Conference, (TD/RBP/CONF.5/16) and the Agreed Conclusions of the Intergovernmental Group of Experts at its Third session (TD/B/COM.2/CLP/L.7).
3. Accordingly, the secretariat has prepared this note, which contains commentaries on the texts of competition legislation of Indonesia, New Zealand and Thailand.*
4. Thus, to date the UNCTAD secretariat has published in its Handbooks notes containing commentaries on and texts of competition legislation of 45 countries: Algeria, Belgium, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Hungary, Indonesia, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Kenya, Lithuania, Mexico, Morocco, New Zealand, Norway, Pakistan, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Romania, Senegal, Slovakia, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sweden, Thailand, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America, Venezuela and Zambia.
5. The Secretary-General of UNCTAD, in his note of 8 March 1996, requested States which had so far not done so, or which had introduced new or amending competition legislation since their last communication to the UNCTAD secretariat, to provide the latter with their relevant legislation, court decisions and comments, on the basis of the format indicated (see below). (However, in the case of States adopting competition legislation for the first time, the commentary may not necessarily accord with the format.) In order to facilitate the reproduction of texts of legislation in more than one official language of the United Nations, States were invited to submit, if possible, the text of their legislation in one or more other languages of the United Nations.
6. The UNCTAD secretariat is grateful to the States which have contributed the material requested for the compilation of the Handbook, and once again requests States which have not yet done so to comply with the request of the Secretary-General of UNCTAD referred to above.

COMMENTARIES ON COMPETITION LEGISLATION

I. COMMENTARY BY THE GOVERNMENT OF INDONESIA ON THE COMPETITION LAW OF INDONESIA

Background

Indonesian economic development during the first long-term development produced a tremendous amount of progress. It was motivated by development in various sectors, including economic development policy stipulated in the broad outlines of the nation's direction and the five year development and various kinds of other economic policies as well. Although there were a lot of progress which was shown by high economic growth, there are also still many challenges or economic problems in Indonesia. In reality, business opportunities created during the past three decades have not been able to make the whole population to afford and to participate in the development of various economic sectors.

The development of private business during that period, on one hand was marred by all kinds of inefficient government policies that caused market distortion. On the other hand, the development of private business in reality occurred mostly due to the condition of unfair business competition. The above phenomena was developed and supported by a close relationship between the decision makers and business actors. Furthermore, the business actors having close relationship to ruling elite, acquired excessive facilities that created a social gap. The emergence of conglomerate and a small group of strong business actors without being supported by a spirit of true entrepreneurship was one of the factors that caused the economic stamina to become very fragile and unable to compete.

Due to the bad climate on business competition and the need to provide equal protection and to create a fair business competition, the government of Indonesia and the Indonesian parliament agreed to enact the Law number 5 of 1999 concerning the prohibition on monopolistic practices and unfair business competition.

Objectives

Indonesian business actors in doing their business shall be based on economic democracy with due attention to the equilibrium between the business actors' interest and the public interests. Considering the principle of the philosophy on Indonesian competition policy, the objectives of the Indonesian competition law are:

- a. to safeguard the interests of the public and to improve economic efficiency as one of the efforts to improve the people's welfare;
- b. to create a conducive business climate through the stipulation of fair business competition in order to ensure the certainty of equal business opportunities for large, middle and small-scale undertakings in Indonesia;
- c. to prevent monopolistic practices and/or unfair/unhealthy business competition that may be committed by undertakings, and
- d. the creation of effectiveness and efficiency in business activities.

The Substance of the Act Number 5 of 1999

The substance of the Indonesian competition law which is under the coverage of the Act Number 5 of 1999 are:

A. Prohibited Agreements

This chapter covers Oligopoly, Price Fixing, Price Discrimination, Resale Price Maintenance, Market Allocation, Boycott, Cartels, Trust, Oligopsony, Vertical Integration, Exclusive Dealing or Closed Agreement.

Most of business practices are placed under the coverage of ride of reason approach. Only a few of the articles are considered as per se illegal; one of which is price fixing. Further more, agreement among business actors which may be considered as oligopoly is if two or three business actors or a group of business actors jointly control production and/or marketing of goods and/or services more than 75% of the market share of a certain type of goods or services. The 75% of the market share in this article is only a presumption.

B. Prohibited Activities

This chapter covers monopoly, monopsony, market control, predatory pricing, conspiracy. Like oligopoly, the criteria to decide whether there is a monopoly or monopsony are only presumption.

C. Dominant Position

Business actors shall have a dominant position if a business actor or a group of business actors controls 50% of market share or more, or two or three business actors or group business actors control 75% or more of the market share.

D. Business Competition Supervisory Commission

This chapter covers the Commission status, membership, duties and its authority.

E. Procedure in Handling Business Competition Cases

Model Law on Restrictive Business Practices issued by UNCTAD (Rev 5) and other legislation from other countries.

II. COMMENTARY BY THE GOVERNMENT OF NEW ZEALAND ON NEW ZEALAND'S COMPETITION LEGISLATION

A. Reasons for the introduction of the legislation

New Zealand's primary competition laws were enacted in 1986, but there have been a variety of such laws since 1905. Between 1958 and 1986 the trade practices law was based primarily on United Kingdom legislation. This type of legislation was formalistic, consisting of lists of practices that could be investigated, and generally only preventing those considered contrary to the public interest.

A change of approach was made with the enactment of the Commerce Act 1986 and the Fair Trading Act 1986. These Acts were developed during a period of wide ranging reforms designed to increase the competitiveness and efficiency of the New Zealand economy by reducing government control and direct regulation of business activity. The aim of the legislation was to ensure that private regulation did not replace the recently removed public regulation of markets.

The new approach was to avoid industry-specific regulations as much as possible and to rely on general rules that apply across all sectors. The Commerce Act has general prohibitions on arrangements or practices that have an anticompetitive purpose or effect. The Fair Trading Act contains provisions relating to deceptive conduct, unfair practices, and standards for safety and consumer information.

B. Objectives of the legislation

The objective of the Commerce Act 1986 is to promote competition in markets in New Zealand for the long term benefit of consumers. It seeks to achieve this objective through legislation which:

- prohibits the establishment or operation of business arrangements which substantially lessen competition;
- prohibits firms from taking advantage of a substantial degree of market power for anticompetitive purposes;
- provides for the scrutiny of mergers and takeovers to prevent a substantial lessening of competition; and,
- provides for price control in markets where there is an absence of competition.

The Act has a presumption in favour of competition because pro-competitive practices usually increase efficiency and therefore increase overall consumer welfare. However, practices can be authorised if it is shown that there are public benefits that outweigh the anticompetitive detriments.

The objective of the Fair Trading Act is to ensure that consumers receive appropriate and accurate information that they need to make informed choices, which are a necessary prerequisite to competition in the marketplace. The Act also protects ethical traders, as such traders are detrimentally affected when their competitors engage in deceptive or unfair trading practices.

C. Practices subject to control

(i) Restrictive Trade Practices

Sections 27 and 28 in Part II of the Commerce Act prohibit contracts, arrangements, or understandings that have the purpose, effect or likely effect of substantially lessening competition.

Section 29 prohibits contracts, arrangements, or understandings between competitors that contain exclusionary provisions unless it can be shown that the provision does not substantially lessen competition. Contracts, arrangements, or understandings that fix, control, or maintain the prices of goods or services are deemed to substantially lessen competition by sections 30 and 34. Sections 37 and 38 prohibit resale price maintenance.

Any of these anticompetitive arrangements may be authorised by the Commerce Commission if it is shown that the public benefits outweigh the anticompetitive detriments.

Section 36 provides that no person who has a substantial degree of market power shall take advantage of that power for the purpose of restricting entry into a market, preventing or deterring any person from engaging in competitive conduct in a market, or eliminating any person from a market. Such conduct can not be authorised.

Part II of the Commerce Act does not contain prohibitions against monopolisation. Monopoly power is permitted, but anticompetitive use of that power is not.

Sanctions for contraventions of the restrictive trade practice provisions include:

- pecuniary penalties of up to $10 million or 3 times the illegal gain for bodies corporate, and up to $500,000 on an individual (who may not be indemnified in respect of those penalties in the case of contraventions of section 30);
- injunctions or cease and desist orders restraining companies or individuals from conduct that breaches the Act; and
- awards of compensatory and exemplary damages to any person who has suffered loss or damage by a breach of the Act.

(ii) Business Acquisitions

Acquisitions of shares or assets of a business are prohibited under Part III of the Commerce Act if the transaction has the effect, or would be likely to have the effect, of substantially lessening competition.

The Act provides a system of voluntary pre-notification of business acquisitions. Parties may apply to the Commerce Commission for a clearance or authorisation before proceeding with a business acquisition. A clearance confirms that the acquisition will not result in substantially lessening competition. An authorisation allows anticompetitive acquisitions that result in net benefits to the public. The Commission has 10 working days in which to decline or grant a clearance, and 60 working days to decline or grant an authorisation. These timeframes may be extended with the agreement of the applicant and the Commerce Commission.

Failure to gain a clearance or an authorisation does not make implementation of an acquisition unlawful, but will mean that it may be subject to legal challenge by the Commission or third parties.

Sanctions for contraventions of Part III of the Act include:

- pecuniary penalties of up to $5 million for bodies corporate and up to $500,000 for an individual;
- injunctions or cease and desist orders to prevent acquisitions from taking place;
- orders for a person or company to divest specified assets or shares; and
- awards of compensatory damages to any person who has suffered loss or damage for breaches of the Act.

(iii) Consumer Protection

The Fair Trading Act 1986 prohibits misleading or deceptive conduct, false representations, unfair practices and substandard goods and services. The prohibitions are not limited to dealings with consumers but also include transactions between businesses.

The main provisions are the following:

- people in trade are prohibited from engaging in misleading or deceptive conduct generally (section 9);
- certain types of false or misleading representations are prohibited, including about employment (section 12), goods or services, including false claims that goods or services are of a particular price, standard, quality, origin or history or that they have particular uses or benefits or that they have any particular endorsement or approval (section 13);
- certain unfair trading practices are prohibited, including pyramid selling, referral selling, and bait advertising (sections 17 to 24); and
- consumer information and product safety standards are specified (sections 27 to 33).

Breach of the Fair Trading Act may result in a fine, injunction or awards of compensatory damages. The Courts may also order corrective advertising or statements at the expense of the person or company that breached the Act. Other civil orders may be made declaring any contract or part of a contract to be void, varying a contract, or directing a person to refund money or to pay compensation.

D. Scope of the application of the legislation

(i) Liabile Persons

Section 3(1A) provides that the Commerce Act applies to markets in New Zealand for goods or services as well as other goods or services that, as a matter of fact and commercial common sense, are substitutable for them.

Penalties, damages, or injunctions may be sought against persons who contravene the decisions relating to restrictive trade practices and business acquisitions.

Penalties, damages, or injections may also be sought against those persons who aid, abet, counsel, induce or attempt to induce, or conspire with, or are in any way, directly or indirectly, knowingly concerned in or are a party to a contravention by another person.

(ii) Exemptions

Application to the Crown is limited to instances where the Crown engages in trade, except that the Crown shall not be liable to pay a pecuniary penalty and shall not be liable to be prosecuted for an offence under the Act.

Practices which are specifically authorised by other statutes or by orders in council are exempted from the trade practices prohibitions in Part II of the Commerce Act. In addition, there are exemptions for agreements restricting competition between partners; agreements between interconnected bodies corporate; agreements to protect the goodwill of a business being sold; agreements to comply with product quality standards; agreements relating to remuneration, conditions of employment, hours of work, or working conditions of employees; agreements relating exclusively to exports from New Zealand; and actions undertaken by groups of consumers.

Further exemptions apply to provisions relating exclusively to the carriage of goods to and from New Zealand by sea, and to conduct in accordance with a statutory intellectual property right.

(iii) Extra-territorial Application

Section 4 of the Commerce Act extends the application of the Act to any conduct outside New Zealand by any person resident or carrying on business in New Zealand to the extent that such conduct affects a market in New Zealand.

There are also specific provisions extending the application of the Act to trans-Tasman abuses of market power. These provisions reflect a Closer Economic Relations agreement between New Zealand and Australia, which has led to the dismantling of most government-imposed barriers to trade between the countries. Accordingly, there is an increasing volume of trans-Tasman trade and business acquisitions that have effects on the competitive process in both countries.

The legislation provides for cooperation between the Commerce Commission and the Australian Trade Practices Commission in relation to the investigation of anticompetitive conduct occurring in one country and affecting a market for goods in the other country. Under sections 98H(2) and 99A of the Commerce Act the two Commissions may receive information and documents on behalf of each other. The Evidence Act 1908, the Judicature Act 1908, and the Reciprocal Enforcement of Judgments Act 1934 have been amended to allow the courts in each country to assist the other in hearing cases relating to anticompetitive practices. The Australian courts can serve subpoenas in New Zealand, and vice-versa. Submissions to the court can be made by video-link or telephone, and judgments, orders, and injunctions are readily enforceable by either court. In addition, the relevant court will be able to sit in the other country in appropriate cases.

(iv) Existence and Effect of Agreements

The provisions prohibiting practices that substantially lessen competition generally refer to contracts, arrangements, and understandings. A “contract” means an agreement enforceable at law. “Arrangements and understandings” describe something less than a formal contract, such as an arranged plan which may not be enforceable at law.

Two elements are required – there must be a “meeting of minds”, shown by some form of communication between the parties, and some indication of intention or expectation to act in a certain way. Conduct is an important indicator, and may include evidence of parallel conduct, similar pricing structures, joint action, opportunities for the parties to reach an understanding (such as industry meetings), or evidence of collusion between the parties.

E. Enforcement machinery

Public enforcement of competition law is the responsibility of the Commerce Commission. The Commission may initiate an investigation into an alleged breach of the Commerce Act either following a complaint or as a result of its own surveillance activities. Investigations are similar to criminal enquiries.

The Commission has the following investigation powers:

- power to obtain information by requiring persons to furnish in writing certain information, to produce certain documents; or to appear before the Commission to give evidence;
- power to obtain and execute search warrants and to require assistance to locate the information required; and
- power to impose a confidentiality order.

Once an investigation has been concluded, and a breach has been found, the Commission has a number of enforcement options available to it to assist in achieving compliance. The Commission may:

- issue a warning;

- administratively settle with the party or parties who must agree to modify their behaviour and provide formal signed undertakings to this effect;
- seek an injunction or impose a cease and desist order restraining any person from activities that breach the Act; or
- initiate proceedings in the High Court.

Private individuals or bodies corporate may also take action in the High Court against breaches of the Commerce Act.

Commerce Act cases are civil proceedings. The High Court is empowered to receive statements, documents and information in evidence that would not otherwise be admissible where such evidence may assist the Court to deal effectively with the matter. In certain cases, High Court decisions can be appealed to the Court of Appeal.

F. Parallel and supplementary legislation

(i) Controlled goods or services

Parts IV and V of the Commerce Act provide for goods and services to be subject to price control. If any goods or services are declared to be controlled, the Commerce Commission may authorise the supply or acquisition of those goods or services subject to price, revenue or quality measures.

Part IVA of the Act provides for the Commerce Commission to impose price control on large electricity lines businesses on its own initiative, rather than make a recommendation to the Minister of Commerce. The Commission is to decide on thresholds for imposing price control for large electricity lines businesses. In addition, the Commission must check disclosed asset values of electricity lines businesses and conduct a review of the valuation methodologies, which is currently optimized deprival value.

(ii) Essential facilities

New Zealand primarily relies on the Commerce Act 1986 to regulate access to essential facilities. The Act is complemented by industry-specific information disclosure regulations designed to make transparent the performance of businesses with market power, and the threat of heavier handed regulation, such as price control, if monopoly power is abused.

There is however industry specific regulation in a number of sectors. The Electricity Industry Reform Act 1998 provides for the restructure of the electricity industry to facilitate competition and restrict relationships between electricity lines and supply businesses that may not be at arms length.

The Electricity Industry Act 2001 is primarily aimed at encouraging the electricity industry to develop its own solutions to ensure that electricity is delivered in an efficient, fair, reliable and environmentally sustainable manner to all consumers. However, if the industry fails to meet these objectives, the Act provides for the government to intervene and regulate to impose requirements. The regulation that may be imposed is wide reaching, and includes the establishment of an Electricity Governance Board which may make rules over the operation of electricity markets.

Further specific regulation in the telecommunications sector is pending.

(iii) International Co-operation

As a Member of the O.E.C.D., New Zealand complies with the 1986 Recommendations on international co-operation relating to the notification of investigations or proceeding to other Member countries if their interest may be affected. The criteria are whether an investigation or proceeding relates to the conduct of a person resident or carrying business in another member country, or whether the conduct is likely to have an effect on competition in a market in another member country.

III. COMMENTARY BY THE GOVERNMENT OF THAILAND ON THE COMPETITION LAW OF THAILAND

A. Development of Thailand Competition Law

The development of competition law in Thailand began with the enactment of the Price Fixing and Anti-Monopoly Act of 1979. The 1979 Act consists of two parts. The price fixing part and the anti-monopoly part. The anti-monopoly part of 1979 Act is aimed at promoting fair competition. It empowers the Central Committee to look after business structures that may create monopoly and conduct restrictive business practices. But since it created problems for enforcement, the Department of Internal Trade, who is in charged of the said Act, made the adjustment of the Act by separating it into 2 Acts: The Price of Goods and Services Act and the Competition Act. The Competition Act which came into effect on April 30, 1999 is emphasized on business conduct control.

B. Objective of the Act

The objective of the Business Competition Act of 1999 is to promote fair and free trade. Its principle is mainly to look after business practices.

C. Anti-Competitive Behaviors under the Act

Under the Act, the anti-competitive behaviours have been defined and divided into three main categories: the abuse of market domination, merger and other anti-competitive conducts.

(I) The Abuse of Market Domination

Its objective is to prohibit a business operator with market domination from advantageously utilizing his/her position or creating barrier to entry for other business operators. "A Business Operator with Market Domination" means one or more business operators in the market of any goods or services who have the market share and sales volume above the level that prescribed by the Competition Commission. The prohibited acts are as follows.

1. unreasonably fixing or maintaining purchasing or selling prices of goods or fees for services;
2. unreasonably fixing compulsory conditions, directly or indirectly, requiring other business operators who are his or her customers to restrict services, production, purchase or distribution of goods, or restrict opportunities in purchasing or selling goods, receiving, or providing services or obtaining credits from other business operators;
3. suspending, reducing or restricting services, production, purchase, distribution, deliveries or importation without justifiable reasons, or destroying or causing damage to goods in order to reduce the quantity to be lower than market demand;
4. intervening in the operation of business of other persons without justifiable reasons.

(II) The merger part of the Act is adopted to prevent merger that may lead to monopoly or unfair competition. The Act defined mergers which result in the amount of market share, sales volume, capital stocks or assets in excess of those specified by the Competition Commission may proceed the competition Commission grants approval.

(III) Prohibita business operator from conspiring, colluding or collaborating with another business operator, which result in creating monopoly, reducing competition or restricting competition in any of the following manners.

1. fixing selling price of goods or services as a single price or as agreed or restricting the sale volume of goods or services;
2. fixing buying price of goods or services as a single price or as agreed or restricting the purchase volume of goods or services;
3. entering into an agreement with a view to having market domination or market control;
4. fixing an agreement or condition in a collusive manner in order to enable one party to win a bid or a tender for goods or services or in order to prevent one party from participating in a bid or a tender for goods or services;
5. fixing geographical areas in which each business operator may distribute or restrict the distribution of goods or services, or fixing customers to whom each business operator may sell goods or provide services to the exclusion of other business operators from competing in the distribution of such goods or services;
6. fixing geographical areas in which each business operator may purchase goods or services or fixing persons from whom business operators may purchase goods or services;
7. fixing the quantity of goods or services in which each business operator may produce, purchase, distribute or provide with a view to restricting the quantity to be lower than the market demand;
8. reducing the quality of goods or services to a level lower than that in the previous production, distribution or provision, whether the distribution is made at the same or at a higher price;
9. appointing or entrusting any person as a sole distributor or provider of the same goods or services or the same kind of goods or services;
10. fixing conditions or practice with regard to the purchase or distribution of goods or the provision of services in order to achieve the uniform or agreed practice.

In the case where it is commercially necessary that's any act under Section 27(5-10) be undertaken, the business operator shall seek prior approval from the Competition Commission.

(IV) The Act also deals with agreements between domestic and overseas business operators performing an activity which will restrict the freedom or opportunity of a person residing in the Kingdom from purchasing goods or services for his/her own use directly from business operators outside the Kingdom.

(V) In order to prevent any other behaviors, which may not be covered by the above provisions, the Act also prohibit a business operator from performing any act which are not free and fair competition and which results in destroying, impairing, obstructing or impeding or restricting business operation of other business operators or preventing other persons from carrying out business or causing the cessation of business.

It can be seen that business practices controlled by the Business Competition Act of 1999 cover the practices, acts or behaviors in Section D, paragraph 3 and 4 of the Set of Principles and Rules.

D. Scope of application of the legislation

The 1999 Act does not apply to the act of central, provincial and local administration; state enterprises under the law on budgetary procedure; group of farmers, co-operatives or co-operative societies recognized by law that their businesses are operated for the benefit of the farmers; and businesses prescribed under the Ministerial Regulation.

The Competition Act, however, applies to the acts or behaviors that are committed in the Kingdom of Thailand as well as those that are committed outside the Kingdom but have effect in the Kingdom.

Generally speaking, the Competition Act was enacted without the dependent upon the existence of any agreement.

The sub-committees shall have powers and duties to conduct an investigation and inquiry in connection with the commission of the offences under this law.

(IV) Appellate committee consists of not more than seven qualified persons with knowledge and experience in law economics, business administration or public administration appointed by the Council of Ministers and officials from the Department of Internal Trade acts as secretary and assistant secretaries appointed by the Director General of the Department. (V) Steps for implementing the Competition Act are as follows:

3. The inquiry and the specialized sub-committees may submit opinions to the Commission to have a prosecution or non-prosecution order. Concurrently, the Commission may order business operators to suspend or cease such act.

4. In case of the Commission's prosecution order, the office of the Competition Commission will submit such opinions to the public prosecutor together with words of investigation for further proceedings.

(VI) Application for Permission and Considering of the Application

1. Considering the permission of mergers or jointly reducing or restricting of competition, the business operator shall provide adequate reasons for the act both in questions of fact and in questions of law;

2. Business operator and related person shall have opportunities to provide explanation and related evidence;

3. Business operator may reject the Competition Commission's consideration.

F. There is no parallel or supplementary legislation including treaties or understanding with other countries, involving cooperation or procedures for resolving disputes in the area of restrictive business practices

G. There were 2 complaints recently that the Commission has made decision as follows:

I. Tying of Whisky and Beer

The Commission resolutions are the tying sale between Whisky and Beer occurred in subagent and wholesale level. The unreasonably fixing compulsory conditions requiring its customers to restrict purchase of Beer by a business operator having market domination violated Article 25(2) of the Trade Competition Act. Since the criteria for market dominance has not yet been approved by the Cabinet, Article 25(2) could not apply in this case. Therefore, the Commission ordered the Secretariat:

- To inform subagents that the tying sales of Beer was an inappropriate behavior and violate Article 25(2) of the Act so Beer Chang should cease that behavior.
- To monitor the movement of Whisky and Beer producers in particular and report to the Commission periodically.

II. Cable Television Monopoly

The Commission resolutions are as follows.

- Business operation of the UBC group (Cable Television Company) is considered as a single unit so it did not violate Article 27(1) of the Competition Act. The reason is IBC(original) held 98% of UBC (original) and it has the same management team. This is not considered as concerted agreement which may violate Article 27(1) of the Trade Competition Act.

- The UBC Group is the sole business operator in Cable Television business and gain 100% market share which is considered as dominance. Raising prices of service packages by the UBC Group did not violate Article 25(1) since the company faced the financial problems due to Baht depreciation and company loss even if after the merge.

- Since the adjustment of service package and monthly fee is under the approval of the Mass Communication Organization of Thailand (MCOT) which is the Concession Grantor, MCOT should monitor the company's prices of service packages and the number of packages in order to provide more alternatives to consumers.

- The Committee ordered the Department of Internal Trade as a Secretariat to study the contract between the UBC Group and MCOT whether the operation of the UBC group is a State-own enterprise.

H. Bibliography citing sources of legislation and principal decisions as well as public dissemination

The Competition Act in Thailand is under Civil Law System. Thus, the commission decision will be based on the principles and objectives of the Act together with the facts which is case by case.

With regard to public dissemination, the government adopted manual and guidelines of the Act available to public and businessmen for its effective enforcement.

ELUCIDATION ON THE LAW OF THE REPUBLIC OF INDONESIA
CONCERNING THE PROHIBITION OF MONOPOLISTIC
PRACTICES AND UNFAIR BUSINESS COMPETITION

GENERAL

Economic development in the First Long Term Development has resulted in much progress, among other things with the improvement of social welfare. The aforementioned progress achieved in development has been supported by development policies in various fields including policies in the field of economy as set forth in the General State Policy and Five Year Development Plan, as well as in various other economic policies.

Despite the substantial progress achieved in the First Long Term Development, reflected in high economic growth. Many challenges or issues still remain, parallel to globalization trends in the economy and the dynamics and development of private businesses since the early 1990s.

The business opportunities created during the last three decades have in fact not enabled all levels of society to participate in development in various economic sectors. The development of the private sector during the above mentioned period has on the one hand been marked by various forms of inadequate Government policies leading to market distortion. On the other hand, the development of the private sector has in fact been mainly the result of unfair business competition conditions.

The above described phenomenon has developed and has been supported by the relationship between decision makers and business actors, either directly or indirectly, leading to the further deterioration of the situation. The implementation of national economy has not quite adhered to the mandate of Article 33 or the 1945 Constitution, and has shown a very monopolistic tendency.

Businessmen close to the elite of power has obtained extreme facilities resulting in the creation of social gap. The emergence of conglomerates and a group of strong businessmen not supported by the spirit of real entrepreneurship has been one of the factors which caused the economic capacity to become extremely vulnerable and un-competitive:

The above situation and condition has caused us to have to study and rearrange business activities in Indonesia, so that businesses can grow and develop in a fair and appropriate way, leading to the creation of a fair business competition climate, and in order to avoid the concentration of economic power around one certain person or group, among other things in the form of monopolistic practices and unfair business competition harmful to society, which are contradictory to the ideals of social justice.

Therefore, it is necessary to stipulate the Law Concerning the Prohibition of Monopolistic Practices and Unfair Business Competition intended for the enforcement of provisions of law and providing equal protection for every business actor in an effort to create fair business competition.

This law provides guarantee of legal certainty for stimulating further a rapid economic development in an effort to improve social welfare, as well in implementation of the spirit and intentions of the 1945 Constitution.

For an effective implementation of this law and implementing regulations thereof in accordance with its principles and objectives, it is necessary to form a Business Competition Supervisory Committee, i.e. an independent institution free from the influence of the Government and other parties, having the authority to conduct supervision of business competition and, to impose sanctions. Such sanctions shall be in the form of administrative measures, whereas criminal sanctions shall be under the authority of the court of justice.

In general, the substance of the Law Concerning the Prohibition of Monopolistic Practices and Unfair Business Competition consists of 6 (six) regulatory parts such as:

1. prohibited agreements:
2. prohibited actions:
3. dominant position:
4. Business Competition Supervisory Committee:
5. Law enforcement
6. Miscellaneous provisions

This law has been drawn up based on the principles of Pancasila (State Philosophy) and the 1945 Constitution, and it has been based on economic democracy with due observance of equilibrium between the interests of business actors and public interest with the aim of: safe guarding public interest and protecting consumers; develop a conducive business climate through the creation of fair business competition, and ensure certainty in equal business opportunity for every person; preventing monopolistic practices and/or unfair business competition created by business actors; and creating effectiveness and efficiency in business activities in the context of improving the efficiency of national economy as one of the efforts for improving social welfare.
