Create, Innovate, Recover: digitalizing creative industries for a sustainable recovery in Africa
High-level event
23 September 2021, 6.30-8 a.m. AST, 12:30-2 p.m. CEST

Background

In November 2020, the United Nations declared 2021 the “International Year of Creative Economy for Sustainable Development”. The creative economy is not only one of the most rapidly growing sectors of the world economy, but also a highly transformative one in terms of income generation, job creation and export earnings, thus contributing to the 2030 Agenda. In the context of the African region, the application of new digital technologies in this sector, its positive impact on gender equality, the local development it generates through tourism, and the effective protection and promotion of intellectual property rights (IPR) as part of African Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA) agenda, represent key opportunities to better utilise, strategize and invest in the creative sector.

Acknowledging its potential, many Member States have committed to raising awareness, sharing best practices and promoting cooperation to seize the opportunities and tackle the challenges of creative economy.

For example, the European Union Strategy for international cultural relations focuses on supporting culture as an engine for sustainable social and economic development and on promoting culture and intercultural dialogue for peaceful inter-community relations, at home and abroad. Similarly, UNIDO and UNCTAD recognize the importance of combining creativity with innovation, digital transformation, trade, intellectual property and opportunity driven entrepreneurship. Consequently, they provide technical assistance to build skills, spur innovation and competitiveness, promote trade opportunities and develop export capabilities.

The impact of COVID-19 on creative industries was significant, hence the urgent need to explore innovative ideas, put in place development programmes, and strengthen partnerships for a more sustainable and inclusive economic recovery.
Topics for discussion

Focusing on Africa and drawing on various case studies from East and West Africa, this event, co-organized by UNIDO, UNCTAD and Sound Diplomacy, will explore the importance of innovation and digital transformation in the creative sector and how they can contribute towards the recovery from the COVID-19 crisis and the achievement of Sustainable Development Goals. To that end, the session will bring together sectoral experts, policymakers, development actors, artists, and business leaders, to share perspectives and concrete ideas, and identify how international partnerships can further enhance programmatic opportunities in the African region.

The meeting will explore how the international community could support national efforts of developing countries to increase their participation in and benefit from dynamic sectors and to foster, protect and promote their creative industries, including by way of strategies to appropriately protect and enforce intellectual property for trade and development goals.

• How can innovation and digital technologies be harnessed for the development and growth of inclusive and sustainable creative industries?

• How have the creative industries been impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic? How is the digital transformation of the sector supporting the recovery and enhancing its resilience?

• What are the most urgent needs to be addressed to unlock the full potential of the creative industries? How can we close the digital gender gap in the sector?

• How could the European Union and international partnerships better support the creative industries, particularly in the African region?

Objectives

• Discover how the European Union, UNIDO, UNCTAD and other international partners are supporting the creative and cultural recovery for the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals.

• Understand how the creative sector contribute to employment generation and a knowledge-based and innovation-driven economic development, particularly in East and West African States.

• Learn how innovation and digital technologies can be harnessed for the development and growth of inclusive and sustainable creative industries.

• Identify synergies and opportunities for cooperation on the subject matter at subregional and regional levels.

• Raise awareness on the potential of digital transformation and creative industries for advancing inclusive and sustainable industrial development in the continent.
